Title: Seniors Week 21-28 March 2010

This year's NSW and ACT Seniors Week, held 21 to 28 March, encourages seniors to 'live life'.

Tunstall Healthcare, the world's leading provider of telehealthcare has always encouraged seniors to live life, offering older people the opportunity to remain independent in their own homes, rather than moving to aged care.

Older people are often more comfortable and confident in their own homes, but may need a little extra support to continue living independently.

To do this, Tunstall offers a 24 hour response service that can be quickly and easily accessed at any time of the day or night.

The response centre will speak to the person in need and organise the necessary assistance, such as a family member or friend to be contacted, ambulance to be called or after hours GP to be organised.

Tunstall's 24 hour response service allows seniors to live their life and maintain their independence in the home.

Tunstall also offers a range of assistive technology such as fall detectors, property exit sensors and bogus caller triggers.

Ideal for people at risk of falling, the Tunstall fall detector notifies the response centre if the wearer falls, ensuring appropriate assistance is organised.

The property exit sensor is ideal for people with early signs of dementia, to detect if the resident has left the home at an inappropriate time and not returned.

The property exit sensor allows a person living with dementia to continue living in their own home and prevent them from having to be locked in at night.

The bogus caller trigger allows the resident to activate a silent alarm call for help if they feel threatened by anyone at their front door.

Tunstall's personal alarm, 24 hour response centre and assistive technology also encourages people to continue to 'live life' with the peace of mind that they are safe and supported in their own home.
