Modern Medicine Management

Tunstall Healthcare has just launched the new NHS Swindon patient case study film clip which demonstrates the use of telehealth in managing patients with COPD.

Violet Carter talks about her condition and how she uses the Tunstall RTX telehealth system to manage her condition in the home.

According to Mrs Carter, since using the RTX she has not had to visit the hospital or attend any outpatient appointments.

“This saves a lot of time for me and the hospital doctors”, Mrs Carter said.

“I can monitor my health and if I have any problems they get in touch with me and tell me.”

Swindon community matrons support the rollout of telehealth because of the benefit it offers to patients.

According to Community Matron Helen Rollings, a six month evaluation of telehealth showed that it saved one emergency admission per patient.

Similarly, Swindon Community Matron, Kim Hogan has witnessed greater patient understanding of their condition and improved medication compliance, which has improved outcomes for the patients.

“Since using the monitors we have definitely seen a reduction in hospital admissions, GP callouts and outpatient appointments”

Telehealth has also assisted in diagnosing additional conditions for some patients.

Telehealth offers improved medical information to supporting nurses and doctors, enhances patient understanding of their condition and offers peace of mind to the patient and their family and friends.
