Work with Heart

For this year's World Heart Day, 27 September 2009, the World Heart Federation encouraged people to 'Work with Heart' and embrace a workplace that encourages healthy habits to reduce heart disease and stroke.

Tunstall Healthcare, the world's leading provider of telehealthcare encourages its employees to maintain a healthy lifestyle by providing an onsite gym, chilled filtered water in the office, healthy options in the snack vending machine and a breakout room with massage chair to help employees to de-stress.

With employees working around the clock to provide a 24 hour response service to thousands of Australian's living with chronic conditions, Tunstall believes that to look after their clients, they first have to look after their employees.

Providing personal alarms, assistive technology solutions and a 24 hour response service, Tunstall's response centre operators work around the clock organising assistance for clients in need.

This might be for an ambulance to be called, an after-hours doctor to attend, a family member or carer to be notified, or a neighbour to sit with the resident while they wait for emergency services to arrive.

When dealing with heart conditions and stroke, minutes can mean the difference between life and death, with Tunstall's service ensuring the resident can get help quickly.

While help is on the way, Tunstall's response operators stay on the line with the resident and can even conference call in the ambulance service while they wait.

Tunstall Healthcare assists people with chronic heart conditions to maintain their independence in the home and provides peace of mind to their friends and family.

Tunstall Healthcare believes in providing choice, quality of life, people focused care and in 'working with heart'.
